John V. Lintner, 1916 - 1983

University of Kansas, Lawrence, instructor in business administration, 1939-40; National Bureau of Economic Research, New York, NY, member of research staff on fiscal policy, 1941; Harvard University, Graduate School of Business Administration, Boston, MA, assistant professor, 1946-51, associate professor, 1951-56, professor of business administration, 1956-64, George Gund Professor of Economics and Business Administration, 1964-83. Member of board of trustees of Cambridge Savings Bank, 1950-83, and board of directors of U.S. and Foreign Securities Corp. and Chase of Boston Mutual Funds (also member of board of trustees), 1975-83; consultant to business and government, including U.S. Secretary of the Treasury and U.S. Bureau of the Census.

WRITINGS BY THE AUTHOR:

- (With Butters and William Lucius Carey) Effects of Taxation: Corporate Mergers, Division of Research, Harvard University, 1952.

"Sidelights"A specialist in capital market theory, economist and author John Lintner formulated investment concepts used widely by financiers. At the time of his death, he was a George Gund Professor of Economics and Business at the Graduate School of Business Administration at Harvard University. He also chaired Harvard's joint doctoral program in economics and business. Lintner acted as a consultant to various organizations, including the U.S. Treasury Department, the Council of Economic Advisors, and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. He also advised both Republican and Democratic administrations. His writings include Mutual Savings Banks in the Savings and Mortgage Markets, Corporate Profits in Perspective, and Finance and Capital Markets. He also wrote The Effects of Federal Taxes on Growing Enterprises with John Keith Butters and The Effects of Taxation: Corporate Mergers with Butters and William Lucius Carey.

PERIODICALS

- Chicago Tribune, June 11, 1983.

Citation Details

Publisher: Thomson Gale
Publication: Contemporary Authors (Biography)
Date: January 1, 2004